The CSCT presents Casual Attire Night Monday, September 8th • Steven's Steak House

Casual Attire Night.

Continuous Solid Grade Oligomer (SGO) Process
Cindy Fruth - Johnson Polymer

Cindy Fruth received her B.S. in Chemistry from the University of Minnesota in 1989 and an M.B.A. from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee in 2002. She began her career as a research synthesis chemist at Cargill's Chemical Products Division in Wayzata, MN. She has also held chemist roles with Cook Composites & Polymers and Syntech, Inc. She also held a sales position with Bayer Corporation. She joined Johnson Polymer in 1997, as an Industry Specialist, and later became Market Manager.

Highly branched polymers have shown unique physical properties, in comparison to traditional linear polymer chains. The continuous Solid Grade Oligomer (SGO) process enables a variety of molecular architectures to be synthesized, resulting in unique rheological properties. The highly branched polymers yield performance properties of higher molecular weight polymers with lower viscosity, allowing for higher solid formulations. Johnson Polymer discusses the property effects of these types of polymers in both coatings and ink formulations. Formulation consisting of 5 components are to the right.
